The Telegraph learns that the discovery of a submerged rock, constituting a danger to deep draft ships, in the vicinity of Buoy C.8, about 700 feet to the west of Kellet Island, was made quite by chance, the chance of a ship actually touching the obstruction.

It is understood that the s.s. Borneo was swinging on the tide, made fast to No. C8 buoy when she encountered the rock.

Fortunately, no damage was done to the ship as far as can be ascertained, but had the vessel been under way it is likely that the damage would have been extensive.

We notice in the radio column of a morning contemporary that a lot of fuss is being made as to whether wireless thingmejigs should be called valves or tubes.

Why, it's so simple that the only thing that amazes us is that we weren't consulted. When they're next door we call them. a confounded nuisance.

The valve, we learn, was invented by an Englishman. An American promptly took out protective measures by inventing the tube. They were both decent chaps, and have since been forgiven.

Marconi had nothing to do with the invention of the valve and the tube. In fact, Marconi invented

He first of all got hold of about two miles of copper wire for his aerial, and run a few more miles of wire inside his set and called it wireless. Which is about the same as calling Kowloon's -coal dump

Speaking of radio reminds us of the chap who was charged with assault and battery. They put him in the H.T. cell, with a little screen grid over the window. You can take this one with a grain of Wireless is divided into two classes-long wave and short wave. Ours is usually the short wave.

The valve is used with both methods but it's a question whether you get valve for your money.

In Russia, in order to encourage the peasants to listen in, wireless sets are given to them free. This is a case of fools Russian where angels fear to tread.

The most necessary accessory for listening in is the loud speaker. Our loud speaker is one of the largest in the Colony. She stands about five feet six and weighs 190

But Pete Watkins is even worse off than us. He has a loud speaker who has such expensive tastes that Pete will aether have to wireless or go into the hands of the receiver.

The Telegraph learns that the discovery of a submerged rock, constituting a danger to deep draft ships, in the vicinity of Buoy C.8, about 700 feet to the west of Kellet Island, was made quite by chance, the chance of a ship actually touching the obstruction.

It is understood that the s.s. Borneo was swinging on the tide, made fast to No. C8 buoy when she encountered the rock.

Fortunately, no damage was done to the ship as far as can be ascertained, but had the vessel been under way it is likely that SOME the damage would have been oxtensive. .

Finally, after a desperate struggle to keep his head above water, Pike, along with numerous others, crashes financially. He hears the news while his wife is giving a gorgeous costume ball. Then he collects his guests round him and preaches his sermon.

TT is not a polite sermon, for he does not select his descriptions of them and their behaviour with any especial care. He first says what comes into his head—things like "swine" and "blood-suckers," and other verbal jewels equally applicable and equally unpolished. In order to drive home the lesson we see the family living afterwards in happy and honest poverty. The picture proves that there is more joy for a family living in three rooms on £100 n year than in a mansion with 20 servants and six motor-cars, on about £250,000 per annum. # NOTES OF THE DAY

It would be interesting to know exactly how the local quotation of the Hongkong dollar in relation to sterling is arrived at. A few months ago, with spot silver at 191/2 in London, the dollar on demand was quoted at 1s. 3%d. This morning, when the price of spot silver in London is 17-13/16ths an ounce, the official rate of the dollar in Hongkong is 1s. 4%d. Truly the ways of high finance are mysterious.

WHAT HAPPENS IN DEATH

SCIENCE MAKES A DISCOVERY

SEEN

Chiago, Illinois. What probably happens in the process of death, learned from watching it take place in tiny cells such as make up all living things, has been reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

When death comes, the fluid material or cytoplasm which constitutes the living material in the cell changes into a mass of granules, reported Dr. Jean Dufrency, plant disease specialist of Bordeaux, France. He made his studies of the death process in sells of plants, but it is possible that they apply also to cells of other forms of life.

Trying to learn how death works within the cells is essential to understanding of how the fitted by this is shown by the fact would fall, if its bricks should disintegrate.

"LIFE" IS INVISIBLE.

"Death" inside the cell can be seen under the ultra-microscope, Dr. Dufrenoy explained, but "life" is invisible. The cytoplash, the actual "life" within the cell, as colourless as water, and cannot be seen, though scientists know it is there and moving because of particles floating in it.

When the cytoplash dies, howgramme is concerned, one of the Lieut. Col. M. When a cell dies slowly, Dr. Dufrency said, the materials of the cytoplash . have more chance to come apart. Fat or oil comes out of the cytoplash most often, in the form of droplets. Cells dying slowly from starvation first use up their reserve food supplies, then part of the cell's living material is digested to feed the rest. This is what happens in fever.—Reuter.

One of the most significant developments in industry in Britain in recent years has been the tendency of foreign firms to bring their factories to this country inorder to escape the tariffs on their goods. To this extent the advorcates of a tariff system might claim that their policy had been successful, even if tariffs were not bringing £30,000,000 of revenue into the Exchequer every year ...
